2025 Vermentino ADELAIDA DISTRICT

The Wine

Expressive and substantial, the 2025 Vermentino offers a richer interpretation of this Mediterranean variety while maintaining its hallmark freshness. Generous in texture yet vibrant in character, it showcases the unique combination of mountain-grown fruit, bright acidity, and layered aromatics that define the Adelaida District.

Varietal Composition

100% Vermentino

Vintage Notes

The 2025 growing season in Paso Robles was marked by warm, even temperatures and cool evenings that encouraged slow, consistent ripening. In the elevated vineyards of the Adelaida District, the combination of marine influence and calcareous soils produced fruit with remarkable aromatic intensity, concentrated flavors, and naturally balanced acidity.

Vineyard Notes

Sourced exclusively from Halter Ranch in the Adelaida District, this Vermentino reflects one of Paso Robles' premier mountain-growing regions. Situated on limestone-rich soils with significant elevation and strong Pacific influence, the vineyard consistently produces fruit with exceptional concentration, vibrant acidity, and distinctive mineral character. These rugged conditions allow Vermentino to develop both aromatic complexity and impressive texture.

Winemaking

The fruit was harvested in the cool morning hours and whole-cluster pressed to preserve delicate aromatics and freshness. Fermentation took place entirely in stainless steel tanks, allowing the fruit to express its pure varietal character. No malolactic fermentation was conducted, preserving the wine's natural acidity while emphasizing its vibrant, expressive profile.

Tasting Notes

The 2025 Vermentino is intensely aromatic, opening with delicate notes of bear clover blossoms intertwined with exotic aromas of dragon fruit and rambutan. The palate is remarkably dense and viscous, offering a rich, mouth-filling texture balanced by vibrant acidity. Flavors of tropical fruit are complemented by hints of citrus marmalade, leading to a long, layered finish that is both refreshing and deeply expressive.
